BEING HUMAN

by Metaxia Kleanthous

Racism is discrimination and prejudice towards people based on their ethnicity, race and beliefs. Racism can be said to describe a contrition in society in which a dominant racial group benefits from oppression of others, whether they want such benefits or not.

We can see racism in many social actions, political systems and practices. Some social actions may include xenophobia, hierarchical ranking, suprematism and segregation. Racism exists everywhere with many ways. In some countries is more and in some countries where the people are more open is less. Some cultures can accept more easily people that are different.

The reason racism exist is because the human brain always “fear” the different. We always tent to see strange people who have some different customs and habits. Is logical but we have to try to respect the habits and everyone’s beliefs. Also we have to be more “curious” and ask them about something we feel is different from us. I believe that racism will always exist in some ways but I think that we evolve slowly. So we can be more open and to accept different cultures and beliefs

Our strategic position is very important in the world. We have also four seasons every year so we can enjoy the sun and the beautiful view of mountains with snow. That is why we have a lot of ski tracks.

We have also lot of forests with many kinds of trees and animals. There are many historic places in our country. There is Efes antile city that is about Greek the city was build before 8000 years. We have three bridges on the marmara gee. They are very important for Turkey. Turkish football team is very famous, Galatasa-Ray and Turkish kitchen is very tasty for example baklava, kebab, sarma and raki.

So that is why I believe my country is the best in the world.

LOOKING FOR EQUALITY

We living in modern days, full of technology, easy getting information, easy ways to travel and free to be our self, without worrying about anything. But are we really so free to be whatever we want?

I am a young Bulgarian girl coming from normal family and I had a very good education. For now everything sounds perfect and great. It looks like I can do everything and go everywhere without worrying about any problem. Well the truth is that is not exactly that way.

I use to be discriminated about my sex at my last job. I started work at a very good company and everything was great. They started giving us tasks we should do. I noticed that they gave me very easy tasks and all interesting tasks was given to my coworkers that were men. So one day I went to my manager and I asked him why I get task that everybody can do and I can't learn anything from them. And he told me that I am a girl and some tasks are hard for me. And also he thought that I couldn't make them work. I get angry with that and I told him that he couldn't judge me based on my sex. So I propose him to give me a hard task and then he will see what is going to happen. After this case I ask some ex-workers also females why they quit their job and they told me that they also felt discriminated at this specific job.

So discrimination can be everywhere even in a free democratic country.
